Spirit of rejection bible verses

Image: krisanapong detraffato/Moment/Getty Images SÅ~ ... John 3:16 is part of this test on basic Bible verses. What would a basic test of Bible verses be without that super famous verse? Test your knowledge of John's eye-catching phrases and more in this verse quiz with one trick: We don't give you the source of the verses before the answer, just the words that precede the required information. Don't worry, you are given many context bits to decide on a superb final answer. By the time you are expected to trigger your hypothesis, you will be given enough biblical language to determine the author, the reviewer or even the biblical book. In this quiz, the apostle Paul rebukes the first errant believers, King Solomon pontificates the lessons of life, King David gives lessons to the Israelites, and Jesus speaks to anyone who would listen. You don't have to struggle with knowledge of the book, chapter, and verses of the Bible, we will reward you with this information whether you hesitate a little or are up to the occasion. Most of the selections you train with involve more noble Christian ideals and less real biblical events. Chewing on what Jesus said, and less worrying about what he did. Do you get the point? All right, now go back! Copyright © 2021 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, un System1 Company Image: Future Light / DigitalVision / Getty Images We selected both rare and common Bible verses for this disciple quiz. How many disciples can you match with verses that refer to disciples or contain their words? It is advised from the beginning that many of these verses refer to Peter. Jesus singled Peter to help him establish many of the teachings that Christians enjoy today, so it was fitting that we highlight examples of Peter's contributions to the faith. John also makes some appearances on this test. Prepare to dig into your memory bank for post-Ascension facts about the disciples. Remember how John goes deep into the philosophy of faith after Christ departed the second time? And no quiz on the disciples of Jesus would be fair without showing Judas Iscariot and his doomed deeds. Of course, Judas was committing the meanest of naughties against God's son, but without his great betrayal, the world would be a very different place. So let's give a knot or two when it's due, now give the bestmatch the verses with the righteous disciples. You've got great clues to score big on this. Good luck!
