Roleplay chat meaning

If you struggle to make your text conversations with women “pop” ...and women only tend to give you cold responses that lack in emotion and excitement...Then you’ll want to learn the texting techniques I’m about to teach you in this article.You see, I’m going to show you how to roleplay with a girl over text.If you do them right, roleplays are a fun technique you can use on a woman to add a spark to the interaction.Roleplaying can be used to trigger a woman’s imagination, spark her emotions, and get her wanting to do things with you. These are things that you WANT to accomplish with a girl.Most Guys Don’t Spark Enough Emotions Over TextUnfortunately, most guys don’t know how to spark a woman’s emotions over text. Instead, they get stuck in boring back and forth text conversations that don’t lead to anything...Worst of all, these types of boring text conversations completely MURDER your chances of ever getting the woman out on a date.Why? Because, in her eyes... you become predictable, boring, and unattractive.And once she sees you’re just like every other guy who is texting her... it’s game over.But not you, my friend, because this site is abundant with tons of texting techniques and mindsets that help you avoid this.In particular, I will soon hook you up with 4 types of texting roleplays that ignite fun text conversations with a woman and make her VERY eager to spend time with you.So if you’re stuck and want to turn things around with that girl you’re thinking of right now... it’s very important that you listen up.Before I show you how to roleplay with a girl over text, and give you word-for-word roleplay examples to try on your own... let’s first answer one question:What the Heck is a Roleplay?Glad you asked.When you roleplay with a girl through text, you get into a back and forth text exchange where you both sort of “get into character.”In other words, getting into a roleplay is getting into a fun “pretend” scenario with the girl.Ok here’s a simple example.Let’s say there’s a girl you’re trying to attract over text, and you text her “I’m at the supermarket. Just bought a gallon of milk, anything else you want me to get?”and she plays along with “yes hun, we’re low on eggs and cheese, and also get some bread”Now a roleplay has begun, and you can continue it with something like“will do, I’ll also get wine, cheese, and grapes for later !”Keep in mind that this can happen even if you’ve never even met this girl. It’s just a fun flirtatious interaction where you both use your imagination.How to Start a Roleplay By Utilizing a “Bait Text”If you look at the above example I just gave you, you will notice that it provides a technique to start a roleplay.By texting her “I’m at the supermarket. Just bought a gallon of milk, anything else you want me to get?” you are throwing her a bait text for her to latch on to.She can now decide to play along, or not... but you test the waters in a low-risk way.Want more examples? You’ve got it.4 Example Roleplay Ideas You Can Use With a Girl Over TextLet’s begin with the first.Roleplay Idea #1: The “Serious Opinion” MimeThis is a fun one. First, you text the girl “I need an opinion on something” ...which does a couple of things.It throws a hook of curiosity that gets her texting back wondering what your question is going to be.It gets her into “autopilot mode” getting her to expect a certain type of “serious” question. Of course, this is just a setup for the element of surprise...After she texts you back wondering what it is that you want to ask her, that’s when you knock her off of her autopilot by saying something like “I’m thinking about quitting my job and becoming a mime.”And now, you’ve thrown her a “bait” text with roleplaying potential.Here’s an example of a text conversation I had using this technique: How to Get Her Out/As soon as you’ve got her engaged and her buying temperature spiked... you can suggest meeting up by telling her you two should get together to train for the European “mime” mission.The specific reason you give her to meet up with you isn’t important. You can come up with different “serious opinion” texts that don’t even involve mimes so it wouldn’t make any sense to tell her you need to train for the mime mission.Okay, onward to roleplay idea #2.Roleplay Idea #2: The Future Adventure ProjectionI love this one.This type of roleplay consists of a “future” adventure you are having with the girl.It’s not just effective, but (when done right) can be a lot of fun... and it can lead to setting up a date.Here’s an example of how I employed this technique on POF.Frankie: Let’s run away togetherGirl: Let’s go! I’ve got the getaway car... Where’s the rendezvous point?Frankie: Switzerland. After long days running a swiss cheese factory, we’ll spend our nights robbing swiss banks in skintight catburglar suits...Girl: Lol surely I would be a satisfactory Swiss bank robbing sidekick. Let me go grab my passport Frankie: You seem to have the attitude that I like when it comes to heist sidekicks... But let’s at least have a first date... You know, to make sure you’re not really a 350 pound asian man @Girl: Hahaha I’m glad I qualify. But yeah for sure we can come up with our game plan on our date haha. Do people really get catfished on here? I just joined so I’m kinda new to all of this. LolFrankie: Yup, I’ve seen some scammy female profiles that I know for sure guys fall for. And girls might get scammed too. For example, some get told they’re going to some European country to rob banks or something and they completely fall for it @Girl: Lol that sucks. Someone should go warn those poor women. I definitely wouldn’t fall for some cheesy trick like that... I can see right through it lol @Frankie! trust that you wouldn’t fall for any el cheapo tricks like that... that’s why I’m enlisting you as my elite heist sidekick... Gimme your number and we shall discuss more about it. Girl: (###) ###-###-###As you can see, I was able to escalate this roleplay scenario into a date.As you go through these types of roleplay... you may start noticing a pattern of how to ask women out that should start filling your brain with ideas of how to handle the logistics problem of spinning a text conversation into a date.Roleplay Idea #3: The Fake Past Adventure ProjectionThis one’s a close cousin of the future adventure projection... except you pretend as if you and the girl have a “history” together.One way I do this is to send her a picture of a cheesy romance novel cover... and pretend it’s an old picture of us.For example... (feel free to grab the image here Roleplay Idea #4: Hire Her/Fire HerNow most guys when they text a girl put her on a pedestal and become REACTIVE to what she does. She gets all the power and what you do is DEPENDENT on her.Instead, the frame you want to set is that you are the CAUSE, not the effect. The type of interaction you want is one where you keep you personal power, are in control, and call the shots.That’s what this roleplay allows you to do.This roleplay idea allows you to use push/pull to create sexual tension and gets the girl reacting to you, and proving herself.Here’s how to start this roleplay. Whenever she mentions something she’s good at, or an area where she has experience, tell her you’re “hiring” her to help you with it. This not only compliments her skill and ability, but it also frames you as being in a position of POWER.For example, if she seems like a smart girl, say:“You seem like a smart girl who’s on the ball. I’m hiring you as my personal assistant.” If she seems like a fun party girl, say:“So you know about all the nightclubs. I’m hiring you. From now on you’re my personal party planner whenever I have friends come to town.”You get the idea.You can “hire” her to do anything.If she’s good at cooking... she’ll be your fashionista or stylist.If she’s fit... she can be your personal trainer.Now the fun part is that when she says something corny or lame, you can “fire” her:“Omg, I can’t believe you just said that. That’s it. You’re fired. Time to look at the resumes of the other applicants .)”Most importantly, remember that this push and pull game is all in good FUN. You’re not trying to be mean. You’re simply trying make her laugh and put a smile on her face without acting like a low-value clown and still being in control.You feeling me?Ok, now that you’ve learned how to roleplay with a girl over text... take action and go use these examples on a girl!If you want more FREE advanced “texting a girl” training, then you’ll want to get a copy of my Girl Doesn’t Text Back “Cheat Sheet”. This page needs improvements to meet the Roblox Wiki's standards.Please proofread or rewrite this page as necessary to ensure that it meets the Roblox Wiki's content and style standards. The specific problems are: Needs a rewrite A known roleplaying game on Roblox, Welcome to the Town of Robloxia. Not to be confused with Role-Playing (subforum). Roleplaying is the act of assuming the role of any entity (a creature or object) and applying its behavior to a fictional situation with other players. As a genre, roleplaying games have become increasingly popular with the releases of various titles, including Robloxaville, Star Wars Awakening (which has since been shut down and replaced with a remake, Star Wars: First Order), After The Flash, Clone Wars Role Play, and Kingdom Life, Clear Skies Over Milwaukee (CSOM). In general, developers of roleplaying games place a greater emphasis on landscapes, user interfaces, and how a player interacts with the environment. For instance, while a sword in a combat place may cause damage to a player's health, a sword in a roleplaying game may not deal out any player damage; the damage (if applicable) is roleplayed out by the character. Scenarios may be predetermined, or players may be given a scene with more freedom in what can be acted out. With the fast-nature of Roblox's chat, roleplaying requires players to think and act fast to keep up; responses to action may occur within seconds, which allows the roleplay to progress very rapidly. This differs from roleplaying on the forums, where players might be given minutes or hours to plan out and implement a response. Conflicts Roleplaying can often be halted or broken by a number of factors, including lack of detailed environment pieces, unfinished or later-conflicting character development, or a player's misuse of grammatically correct messaging. There is also compatibility with certain styles of roleplay taken on by different people. The people with happy stories usually do not like to roleplay with people with sad and mysterious stories. Godmodding Godmodding refers to the action of a player giving their character an elevated level of control and power not normally allowed in a typical session. Many rules have been given against godmodding, which is not confined to a limited set. In most cases, a player cannot jump into a roleplay conversation without expectation and doing so may break the session, or another playor will try to divert the perpetrator. A player is not allowed to kill another player instantaneously, and many games have the option to toggle health. For example, a player can say (His/her health decreases from the tackle), but they cannot say (He/She dies because he/she has a heart attack). A player says they are immortal and cannot die (Person1 hits Person2 with an axe and slashes off Person2's head) (Person2 is headless and still alive and is immortal). This can be unfair to Person1 and may cause arguing. The player's character is able to regenerate a missing limb or body part. (Person1 slashes Person2's left arm off.) (Person2 regrows his/her left arm back). Player's character (depending on game and roleplay) finds a weapon in the middle of nowhere as well as without warning and picks it up or summons a weapon for their use in combat and battle (depending on the roleplay; if it is a fantasy roleplay, summoning weapons would be allowed, but doing so in a war-genre roleplay is considered godmodding since the player cannot magically summon themselves a shotgun while in combat). In-country or nation roleplays ('build a mini country' games where players build and roleplay as countries on a map of the world), example of godmodding would be for example, (Brazil and Argentina head to war with each other. Argentina sends a fair amount of 4 navy ships while Brazil sends out 500 navy ships, which is godmodding) Another example would be, (Brazil nukes Argentina thus ending the war after blowing up Argentina's capital of Buenos Aires, which is godmodding since nuking a country to end a war is a bit idiotic, extreme and causes an abrupt end. In some cases nuclear weapons in nation roleplays are banned, depending on the game). A player kills another character without permission, especially during a fight. (Person2 gets killed instantly by Person1 in 1 punch). A player uses an attack on the other person, and it doesn't affect that person. (Person2 uses magic against Person1, but Person1 takes no effect) Online dating Online dating, compared to roleplaying, has many different aspects that separate the terms sparingly. Online dating in Roblox is the act of looking for a romantic partner in the game, while roleplaying a romance is Roleplaying as a character romantically involved with another character in a storyline, either someone else's character or one not in the current roleplay. A couple engaging in online dating will be formally in a ToS violation through the internet, using communication mediums such as Roblox and/or Skype (Discord may be used as well) and, depending on the player's preferences, would depict inappropriate actions not typically seen in a normal roleplay session (commonly referred to as ERP, or erotic RP, not mutually exclusive to online daters but still a ToS violation regardless). Online daters (or ODers) are heavily criticized and hated among the Roblox community and are also a violation of the Roblox Terms of Service. Go-Getting A "Go-Getter" is a roleplayer who prefers to do their roleplaying alone, or in very small groups hinting limited to no contact with larger groups/factions. It is not generally a problem in the roleplaying sense, however, story and plot points can become broken and misled, resulting in various discussions and breaking the roleplay session. Frame-catcher A "Frame-catcher" is a roleplayer who doesn't want others to be the same character as them. This usually happens in roleplay games with morphs of characters. When a frame-catcher sees someone with the same character, they confront them and say that they are fake and ask to prove that they are "real", a problem with it is that it can disrupt a roleplay, this is generally only a problem in roleplays with already set canon characters of a series or franchise, making it an easy to avoid issue. An example of it can be this: Roleplayer 1: YOU ARE NOT MARIO, I AM! Roleplayer 2: NO I'M MARIO! YOU'RE THE FAKER! Roleplayer 1: SHUT UP! I'M REAL! Roleplayer 2: OK THEN PROVE IT! Roleplaying Actions A roleplay conversation can also include these actions: Roleplayer 1: "Hand me a water bottle please." Roleplayer 2: "Gives water bottle" Roleplayer 1: (Not that bottle, the other one.) Roleplayer 1: "What kind of bread should I get?" Roleplayer 2: "Hands out whole wheat bread" Roleplayer 1: (No, the white bread.) It is uncommon to insert quotations for characters to speak, however, players can see them typically in people who use correct grammar more often. The * (asterisk) symbol (pressing the shift key for the number 8 on the keyboard) is put around a sentence to indicate action by words. For example, if a player was to pick up an object from a table, the player would simply type "picks up item off table*". Parentheses are placed around sentences that go outside of the roleplay session and talk generally about what may be going on inside or outside of the session. The parentheses can be used to remind participating roleplayers of any situation that can be outside of the actual roleplaying, such as the interference of a roleplaying session by a player, and if a roleplayer would want to go out of the roleplaying session for any reasons in real life, such as to work on any homework, go to school, has to go to work, having fun with family, or to go to sleep. Actions or dialogue can be shown in a variety of ways, actions may be done with dashes or asterisks, or sometimes just nothing at all. Example: runs away -runs away- runs away I now ran away I'd run away he/d/she'd run away she/he runs away I now spun, then I now ran away. Mr./Ms. Can Do All A Mr. Can Do All's RP name. These types of roleplayers usually have long RP Bios. They usually have unnecessary amounts of details in their RP-bios. These types of roleplayers are usually mocked or memed on by Roblox users as being edgy or unnecessary. Examples: Jake / half demon / half wolf / half angel / scary / shy / quiet / cute / rich / famous / popular / has secret powers / has crush on ??? / cool / billionaire / SCP / boss Ben / police / cop / has guns / has good aim / very cool / popular / boss of police Angela/ Hated child/ demon girl/ raised by wolf pack/ gets red eyes when angered/ lesbian/ Killer/ will hurt you if you hurt her friends/parents dead/eyes become dark purple when sad Cosplayers A player cosplaying as Connor from the console game Detroit: Become Human. "The android sent by CyberLife" is also a meme on the internet. Cosplaying is dressing as a character from popular media outside of Roblox, such as from a video game, movie, or TV show. Some people do cosplay on Roblox, and they may act like the character they are cosplaying (this is sometimes referred to as LARPing, or live action roleplaying). This often the case in actual roleplaying games, especially those based on the franchise said character is from. Gang Culture on Roblox There has always been a very underground gangster theme present on Roblox, unlike typical roleplays, there are normally these things: On most RP games if the player gets a gun, they could only kill cops or robbers depending on the team, if not, they would have to use roleplay. However, in this type, anyone can get guns and can kill anyone they want. There are normally resident gangs on there, some people may get property in the game for their group normally by paying Robux or being in good standing. Random killing is more prevalent in these types. Random killing would be killing someone with no reason at all other than "I saw them and I want to kill them." These are a big hindrance to these games and the biggest con. An example of these games would be "Merrick, San Roblo" or "Realistic RP/New Bloxton". Criticism Users such as XiaoXiaoMan have stated in numerous videos that roleplaying and Roblox don't mix and that they don't work out at all. Some criticize roleplaying games on Roblox due to the general perception that these roleplays are often of very low quality (often referred to as fail RP or FRP), mostly stemming from the younger demographic of Roblox players who often tend to be inexperienced at roleplaying, making mistakes such as godmodding, metagaming (using bios or other out of character elements to gain an advantage within the RP context), and, in games that have weaponry and/or a combat system, random attacking. Another issue of roleplay stems from RP trolls, who often seek other players' RPs solely for the purpose of being disruptive. There has also been some criticism in Roblox that ODers, or online daters, would frequently go to these types of places, particularly that and supposedly find a person to virtually date. See Online Dating above for more information. This criticism is mostly prevalent in roleplaying games based in school or town/city settings.
